Nugent re lands of Crossardory, late held by Hobart Coyne.
- 48 Rejoinder of Brien Duff to replication of Dominick Roche. Donogho O Brien never died seised of the lands in demand, nor did they descend to More ny Donogho as daughter and heiry ^{but} before the death of the said Donogho O Brien one Brien O Brien McDonill was seised of the castle and lands, and died so seised, when they descended by the custom of Gavelkind which is and have been used time out of mind in the country of Poblebrien where the lands in demand lie to Conogher and Donill two young infants, sons and coheirs to the said Brien, who accordingly entered and were seised of the said castle and lands by the said custom. And being so seised during their minority the said Donogho O Brien their uncle unnaturally disseised them thereof, upon whom they reentered and were seised till disseised by one Teige McDonogho then a rebel who imprisoned them till Sir Humfry Gilbert knt., having then the government of Munster, assisted with the gentlemen of co Limerick, did for divers rebellions assault the said castle where the said Teige kept () and killed him. Any by mishap the said Conogher mBrien was then there slain in the said castle and so deceased without issue, by whose death his moiety and right descended to the said Donell who accordingly entered into the said Castle town and lands till disseised by Sir John of Desmond, knt. (during whose seisin of the said castle and lands the said Donoghoo Brien died) - And after the said Donell entered and was thereof quietly seised and mortgaged the same to Thomas B(ur)gatt (as appears on the answer) and afterwards the said Donell died s.p., when the right of redemption descended to the said Anyr and More ny Hallynane as cousins and heirs to the said Donell McBrien vizt., as daughters and heirs to Marye ny Brien, sister and heir to the said Donell who performed the conditions and conveyed the said castle and lands to the said Brien (as in the answer). And for the supposed feoffment and fine pretended to be levied by the said More ny Brien and Terrellagh her husband the same is no conclu(), if anything be done (which deft. denies), the said fine being not with proclamations. And thaght it were the same could not drown the night of redemption if the said Any and More ny Hallynane had nor make absolute the conditional estate of the said Jordan. etc. etc. 6 April 1597. (? Bill G. 370 or N. 128).
