Approximately 680 Clare men and women that died during WW1 are buried or named in 251 cemeteries or memorials in 22 countries throughout the world. The map gives the countries involved. The exact location of each grave or memorial panel is given over the next 90 pages along with photos of all the cemeteries and memorials. See Index on page 91.

Marshal Foch’s Tribute to the Irish Soldiers who died in the First World War (Nov 1928): “Some of the flower of Irish chivalry rests in the cemeteries that have been reserved in France, and the French people will always have these reminders of the debt that France owes to Irish valour. We shall always see that the graves of these heroes from across the sea are lovingly tended, and we shall try to ensure that the generations that come after us shall never forget the heroic dead of Ireland.”

These cemeteries and memorials are kept in immaculate condition by the Commonwealth War Graves Commission (CWGC) and the American Battle Monuments Commission (ABMC). The CWGC spends over £55 million each year maintaining 23,000 cemeteries and memorials in 153 countries that honour 1,700,000 people who died in WW1 and WW2. The ABMC cares for 8 U.S. military cemeteries and 12 monuments to honour the U.S. troops who died in WW1.

Frank Hogan: Killaloe, died Nov 1918 age 34, Canadian Field Artillery, G/M Reference: M.66. Cemetery: Llandudno (Great Orme’s Head) Cemetery in Wales.

Newport (Christchurch) Cemetery, Monmouthshire, in Wales.

The memorial site is dedicated to the soldiers of Ireland, of all political and religious beliefs, who died, were wounded or missing in the Great War of 1914-1918. Irish men and women served with the Armies of Australia, Britain, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa and the United States.

The tower was built as a symbol of reconciliation by An All-Ireland Journey of Reconciliation Trust and the support of the people of Messines (now called by its Flemish name Mesen). It was constructed using stones from a demolished workhouse in Mullinger, County Westmeath, Ireland.

The design is that of a traditional Irish round tower dating back to the 8th century. It is 33.5 metres (110 feet) high. As part of the design the inside of the tower is lit up by the sun only on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month. The Island of Ireland Peace Park was officially opened at 11:00 hours on 11th November 1998 by the then President of Ireland Mary McAleese in the presence of HM Queen Elizabeth II and King Albert II of Belgium.

Three pillars in the memorial park commemorate the killed, wounded or missing of each of the three Irish divisions which fought with the British Army in WW1:

10th (Irish) Division - 9,363 casualties
16th (Irish) Division - 28,398 casualties
36th (Ulster) Division - 32,186 casualties
A bronze plaque near to the entrance of the Island of Ireland Peace Park is inscribed with a Peace Pledge:

“From the crest of this ridge, which was the scene of terrific carnage in the First World War on which we have built a peace park and Round Tower to commemorate the thousands of young men from all parts of Ireland who fought a common enemy, defended democracy and the rights of all nations, whose graves are in shockingly uncountable numbers and those who have no graves, we condemn war and the futility of war. We repudiate and denounce violence, aggression, intimidation, threats and unfriendly behaviour.

As Protestants and Catholics, we apologise for the terrible deeds we have done to each other and ask forgiveness. From this sacred shrine of remembrance, where soldiers of all nationalities, creeds and political allegiances were united in death, we appeal to all people in Ireland to help build a peaceful and tolerant society. Let us remember the solidarity and trust that developed between Protestant and Catholic Soldiers when they served together in these trenches.

As we jointly mark the armistice of 11 November 1918 – when the guns fell silent along this western front - we affirm that a fitting tribute to the principles for which men and women from the Island of Ireland died in both World Wars would be permanent peace.”

David Cameron and Enda Kenny December 2013 at Messines.
